

Consent to participate in research: Family Thinking and Feeling Study

Researchers led by Jeremy K. Fox at Montclair State University are running this study, "Family Thinking and Feeling Study," on Lookit.

Why we are running this study

You and your child are invited to participate in a study about how families understand and respond to children's emotions and behaviors. We are especially interested in how parents' thoughts and beliefs relate to parenting and their child's well-being. This study will follow families over one year to understand how these experiences change over time.

What happens during this study

This study takes about 60 minutes for you and 30 minutes for your child initially to complete. You will complete an initial online survey about your thoughts, feelings, and experiences as a parent, as well as your child's emotions and behaviors. Your child will complete their own online survey about their feelings, experiences with peers, and family relationships. You and your child will also be asked to complete two follow-up surveys: one in about 6 months, and one in about 12 months. These follow-up surveys will be similar but shorter (approximately 40 minutes for you, 25 minutes for your child). While you and your child are free to withdraw from the study at any time, completing all three surveys helps us understand how families change over time.

"I have read and understand the consent document. I consent for myself and my child to participate in this study."

Participation is voluntary

You are free to choose whether to be in this study. If you do choose to participate, it's okay to stop at any point during the session.

This also applies to your child. You and your child do not have to answer any questions that you do not want to answer.

What are the risks?

Risks are minimal. Some questions ask about emotions or stressful experiences, which might cause mild discomfort. You and your child may skip any question or stop at any time. Survey responses will not be linked with any identifying information. If you or your child experience distress and would like support, we encourage you to utilize the following resources: 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline (24/7): Call or Text 988; Crisis Text Line: Text HELLO to 741-741.

What are the benefits?

While there are no direct benefits to you or your child, this research may help improve programs that support parents' and children's emotional well-being. You and your child will also receive electronic Amazon gift codes as compensation for completing each survey. For the initial survey, you will receive $15 and your child will receive $10. For both the 6-month and 12-month follow-up surveys, you will receive $10 and your child will receive $5. If you each complete all three surveys, you will each receive an additional $5 completion bonus. These bonuses are independent of each other - you can receive your bonus even if your child does not complete all surveys, and vice versa. You will be compensated for each survey you complete, even if you choose not to complete follow-up surveys. If you or your child stop early on any survey, you will still receive the gift code as long as most of it has been completed. To ensure the integrity of this study, survey responses may be reviewed for completeness and overall quality. Responses that are largely incomplete or do not reflect meaningful engagement with the questions may not be eligible for compensation.

Data collection and webcam recording

You will be recorded by your computer's webcam and microphone only while providing verbal consent. This webcam recording is sent securely to the Lookit platform. You can view your past consent recordings on Lookit at any time.

Recordings are stored securely on Lookit servers and by researchers, and are only shared as described in this document. However, there is always a small risk that data transmitted over the internet may be intercepted or that the security of stored data may be compromised.

Who will be able to see your webcam recordings?

We will first check that you really agreed to participate by watching your consent recording.

Because this study only uses video recording for consent, your video data will be treated as "Private" by default, which means that the researchers with access to your recordings will not share them with anyone else.

Your child must be visible with you in the consent recording to verify enrollment.

How we use your data

If you participate in this study, we (the research group led by Jeremy K. Fox at Montclair State University) will have access to

- webcam consent recordings
- your account profile and demographic survey
- the profile for the family member who is participating

This includes changes you make in the future to any of this information. We may put different types of information together to learn more about child development. For instance, if you participate in multiple studies from our group, we may look at how your responses compare across studies, or we may look at how your responses relate to other family members'. We may also study connections between your responses and family demographic survey data.

Please also note that agreeing to participate means you allow the data collected in this survey to be used in future research.

How Lookit uses your data

The Lookit core team at MIT will also have access to your consent data in addition to your account data. They use this data to run and improve Lookit, for instance to provide technical support, check how well data collection is working, or see whether Lookit is reaching a diverse group of families. Lookit stores data indefinitely unless you withdraw your recordings at the end of the study.

Publishing the results of this study

The results of this study may be presented at scientific meetings or published in scientific journals. We may publish individual responses that cannot identify you. We never publish birthdates or names. We never publish information that would make it possible to link recordings with your demographic data.

Who will know that you and/or your child or dependent is in this study?

Your and your child's responses will be kept confidential. All identifying information will be stored in a separate, secure file that is not linked to your survey answers. Only the research team will have access to this file. Only data without identifying information will be used and presented to others. Please note that New Jersey requires anyone with reasonable cause to believe that a child has been abused to report it immediately to the Division of Child Protection and Permanency.
